By Marko Romo
PCU Southern Luzon Bureau

LOS BAYOS, Laguna—The Philippine continues to scrape the bottom of the economic barrel because it has a "weak knowledge base," according to the country's chief economist.

The knowledge base of a nation is the most important asset in achieving economic growth as well as part of the world's economic engine because knowledge and its management," said Socio-Economic Planning Secretary Romulo Tiu, addressing the National Agricultural Research System meeting convened here on Wednesday.

The lack of a significant number of researchers, scarce number of published scientific papers and patents, the poor mechanism for knowledge dissemination, and the inadequate infrastructure to promote entrepreneurship are some indicators of this problem, Tiu said.

Expenditures in research and development amounted to only P4.5 billion in 2002, which is only 11 percent of growth domestic product, he said.

"There were only 184 published articles and average number of patents granted to subjects from 1996 to 2000 ranged from 10 to 15," he added.

Tiu said this situation hinders the role of the economy as the Philippines remains a knowledge-based economy, in which investments in research and development, education and training and new managerial work systems are important factors.

Tiu underscored the role of scientists and researchers in the government's aim to attain advancement in agriculture in the rural areas, which he said was the backbone of President Macapagal-Arroyo's K+1000 National Farm Development Plan.

He said that beginning this year, the government has adopted new policies in science and technology to address the needs of the MTRP.

He said government agencies have been directed to submit a bigger chunk of their annual budgets for research and development studies and innovation work to avert the alarming decrease of scientists and researchers in the country.

Tiu said the government would implement the "Rural Science Program" of the Department of Science and Technology.

It will also push for the full implementation of RA 8439, or the Magna Carta for Scientists, Engineers, Researchers and other T & T Personnel in Government, and promote to work for adequate financial support for its implementation.

"We will deal with the brain drain by tying the work centers two local farmers, scientists or Filipino scientists abroad shall be increasingly tapped as a solution for local skills," he told his audience of researchers and scientists.

Tiu's also said that the improvement in the scientific research field was among the government's priorities.

He said the government would concentrate on developing a good number of scientists and researchers, provide scholarships and grants in support for future researchers, and give awards and recognition to the contributors of Filipino scientists.

He said it would enhance the use of information and computer technology to improve communication and collaboration, exchange among farmers and researchers.

"The problem with a Filipino is we possess a great deal of knowledge but many times, we do not share it. We keep it to ourselves and that knowledge does not benefit anyone," he said.

ABADILLA 5 SC turns down transfer plea of 'kidney' inmate

By Philip C. Tolosa

THE SUPREME COURT has denied a petition from Louie Lomang, one of the Abadilla 5, to be transferred to the National Kidney and Transplant Institute (NKI) from the National Medical Center (NMC) hospital.

In a resolution dated June 8, the high tribunal said Lomang, a kidney transplant patient, did not present sufficient proof that his condition at the NMC hospital is indeed life-threatening, so that the medical officials of the NMC hospital deny it necessary again to transfer him for special medical treatment.

Lomang is one of the five men who were sentenced for the June 1998 murder of Cal Balacorda Sta. Rita. The Abadilla 5 are appealing their sentences before the high court, claiming that the police had tortured them.

The high court said that the date of Lomang's surgery follows from it, that his case was "an old case demanding resolution" at the NMC hospital was "more expedient than now."

The court cited a certification from the NMC that Lomang was stable and fit to be discharged and that he only needed a regular outpatient medical check-up which, it said, he was not being deprived of.

Lomang had petitioned the high court that he be transferred to the NMC or to any other government hospital because of his ill condition.

He however asked the tribunal to order his long-term transfer from the Government of the National Kidney and Transplant Institute (NKI) Director Dr. Carlos O. Ochoa to the NMC's "Bayer" Institute for Nephrology.

Lomang was brought to the NMC hospital on Feb. 11 despite an SC resolution saying that he could remain at the NMC.

In its Feb. 8 resolution, the high court said it did not see "anything unreasonable" in Lomang's and Ochoa's decision to transfer Lomang to the NMC hospital.

"The resolution did not completely rule out said officials are required from transferring Lomang from the NMC to the NMC hospital. It must be assumed that Lomang has been exposed to murder and sentenced to the superior penalty of death, as he was sentenced to death," the high court said.

"NMC officials were granted authority to transfer him from the NMC hospital to the NMC for medical reasons, after which, it was their duty to return him back to the NMC after the project has been completed," it said.

Indonesia court fines poll agency $110M for failing to register voters

JAKARTA—The Indonesian court has ordered the country's election commission to pay 1 trillion rupiah ($133 million) for failing to register an estimated 30 million voters for April's legislative election, officials said yesterday.

Each of the 30 million people the plaintiffs said were denied voting rights would get 35,000 rupiah each, but it was not clear what would be awarded for someone to claim a vote.

The Central Jakarta District court was ruling on a class action suit against the General Election Commission (KEM), in charge of administering Indonesia's elections.

The plaintiffs said it was the commission's responsibility to get eligible voters registered but the commission said it shared the responsibility with the public and it questioned the 30 million figure.

The KEM has been found guilty of taking action against the law by not registering residents who have voting rights," Judge Lila Helmi said. KEM officials said they would appeal against the ruling.

"We accept it and we will submit an appeal to the high court," said the commission's deputy chair, Bambang Subianto.

KEM had been working very hard to register the voters.

Some say that we have failed to register 30 million voters.

That's not true," Subianto added.

The Jakarta Post reported the class action was brought by a team of lawyers representing six people who said they represented an infinite number of voters.

The commission has registered 84 percent of 140 million eligible voters turned up for last April's legislative poll, the first in a series of elections that ended with a presidential run-off in September.

Indonesia quake kills 16

JAKARTA—A strong earthquake rocked parts of eastern Indonesia early Friday, killing 16 people, injuring more than 100 and damaging hundreds of buildings, scientists and officials said.

The magnitude 6.3 quake struck at 7:25 a.m. and was centered 50 km off the northeastern coast of Flores Island, about 1,600 km east of the capital, Jakarta, said seismologist Fachrudin Wicaksono in Jakarta.

It was followed by a magnitude 5 aftershock, he added.

Rescuees claimed 16 people were killed and more than 100 injured in seven districts, said local police chief, Lt. Col. Idris Sidiq. Officials could not confirm the toll. Hospital workers said they had received six bodies in ambulances, the regional police director.

"We are still looking for many small victims here," said Francisco Indarto, a local government official.

"We hope the quake has passed, but we are afraid of big earthquakes which come more often," he said.

One person died when his shop and collapsed, witnesses said. Two workers were hospitalized and hundreds of houses, shops and offices were damaged on the island's main town of Kolaka, they said.

Indian PM announces troop reduction in troubled Kashmir

NEPA LIES!—Indian Prime Minister Manmohan Singh Thursday announced a troop reduction to disprove harsher criticism: a move welcomed by regional rival Pakistan and international critics.

"During the past several months the Indian army, with other security forces deployed in the state of Kashmir, has suffered serious setbacks in its fight against the militant forces of the Islamic group, the Jammu and Kashmir Liberation Front (JKLF). The JKLF has been successful in capturing several towns and villages in the state, and in forcing the Indian army to withdraw from several areas. The JKLF has also been successful in recruiting new members, and in increasing its military capabilities. The Indian government has responded by increasing the number of troops deployed in the state, and by launching a series of military operations against the JKLF. However, the JKLF has managed to withstand these operations, and to continue its struggle for independence. The situation in Kashmir remains tense, and the Indian government is likely to continue its military operations against the JKLF for some time to come."

"In recognition of the improvement in the situation, in the capital the government has decided to reduce the deployment of troops this winter."

Japan protests to China over submarine intrusion

TOKYO—Japan on Friday condemned a Chinese diplomatic ship's determined effort to monitor a Japanese submarine that intruded into its country's territorial waters.

"We have judged the submarine's intrusion to be a serious violation of international law and it's likely the submarine was a nuclear submarine and through diplomatic channels we are going to protest to China," Chief Cabinet Secretary Kiyohiko Fukuda, the government spokesman, told reporters.

Japan's minister of Defense, Ichiro Maeda, said the Chinese ship was a "diplomatic ship" and it's likely the submarine was a nuclear submarine and through diplomatic channels we are going to protest to China.

Japan had earlier released from identifying the submarine, which was spotted near gas fields disputed between the two powers.

But Japan's defense chief said the country had determined the intruder was Chinese during the two-day search that ended Friday.

"As the submarine intruded south by northeast, we determined it belonged to China as the country possesses nuclear-powered submarines in the area and has enough knowledge of geographical features of the area," Defense Agency Director General Yoshitaka Imai said.

The submarine spent about two hours in Japanese waters Wednesday near the southern island of Okinawa before being chased out the bay area by two Japanese destroyers and a surveillance plane.

Japan had been tracking the sub with various electronic devices dropped from the surveillance plane.

A JAPANESE Maritime Self-Defense Force helicopter hovers over waters off Okinawa, on Nov. 13, in search of a suspected Chinese nuclear submarine that is reportedly heading for China's coastal bay.

China has said only that it was aware of the reports of the submarine and was "watching the situation closely."

"Of course, the relevant departments are maintaining close contact to watch the incident," Chinese Foreign Ministry spokesman Chiao Gjin said Tuesday.

Japan has been increasing tensions with China and Japan, which are both heavily dependent on energy imports.

China has deep investment over Japan's broad occupation of the country from 1937 to 1945. The feeling has been regularly inflamed by Prime Minister Junichiro Koizumi's visits to a Tokyo shrine that honors Japanese war dead including scores of war criminals.

Moore plans 'F-9/11' sequel

LOS ANGELES—Documentary filmmaker Michael Moore is planning a sequel to "Fahrenheit 9/11," his polemic against the Bush administration, to be released about the time of the next presidential campaign, a spokesman for his director said Thursday.

The sequel, dubbed "Fahrenheit 9/11 and 1/2," will revamp the nation's role in the 9/11 attacks, which he reportedly said was aimed at covering the administration's role in the presidential race against President George W. Bush. "We want to get the camera rolling now and have it ready to run (in) three years," Moore said. "I don't want to wait until after the election, and we want to release and enlighten them. They need to see the truth," he said.

Bush was re-elected last week, winning 31 percent of the vote in Democratic-led, John Kerry's fall process.

Moore added, "The official mourning period is over today and there is a relief feeling—George W. Bush is prohibited by law from mourning again."

Moore's films, which won the top prize at the Cannes film festival, have grossed nearly $120 million in the U.S. last three years. His financial release in June, a record for a political documentary.

The film, which was funded by Moore and distributed by a partnership including United Artists Entertainment Corp., is expected to be subsidized for a long picture contribution at the Academy Awards.

PRISON DRUG TRADE

Cebu City jail warden sacked

By Johnnie Napalacan
JRU Magay Bureau

CEBU CITY—The warden of Cebu City's Magay Bay Rehabilitation Center (BIRC) was relieved from his post yesterday following reports of a flourishing illegal drug trade inside the city jail.

St. Sept. Benito Dorico, the regional director of the Bureau of Jail Management and Penology (BJMP) 7 confirmed yesterday that he recommended the relief of Sept. Nestor Velazquez.

Velazquez, who has been on a leave of absence since Nov. 8, would be replaced by Sept. Teodoro Lanting Jr., warden of the Panatag City jail.

Dorico said he chose Lanting because he is a Cebuano and he knew the Cebu City officials wanted to have a warden who came from Cebu.

But Marito Corpus, local government undersecretary for peace and order, said he would appoint Lanting as acting warden or officer-in-charge of the BIRC.

Corpus said Lanting's appointment would only be made permanent if Cebu City officials would like him as the new warden.

Dorico decided to recommend the relief of Velazquez following reports of rampant illegal drug trade inside the jail. Two inmates were believed to have died of shabu overdose, although this was denied by BIRC officials.

On Oct. 10, inmate Eric Salinas died due to heart failure. City officials suspected that his death was caused by shabu overdose.

On the other hand, the autopsy report on inmate Jeffrey Nararol's death on Oct. 27 clearly indicated that he died due to complications resulting from "methamphetamine (shabu) abuse."

Another inmate, identified as Jonel Perlas, who is still hospitalized at the Cebu City Medical Center, has continued to Cebu City Councilor Jack Jaksonian that his sickness worsened when he took shabu last month.

Jaksonian said Perlas told him that a deck of shabu was sold for P100 inside the jail. He also claimed that some jail officers were involved in the illegal drug trade.

Dorico said he has already ordered his chief investigator, St. Lap. Ned Abisado, to investigate the case.

The jail warden of the Cebu provincial jail, the Cebu Provincial Detention and Rehabilitation Center (CPDRC), also has a lot of explaining to do after a surprise inspection yesterday yielded several packs of shabu and bladed weapons.

The surprise inspection was conducted by a team from different law enforcement agencies—police, firemen and provincial guards—created by Gov. Gwendolyn Garcia.

Army men harass TV crew

COTABATO CITY—A cameraman of ABS-CBN here was allegedly manhandled by an Army corporal while a reporter for the same media outfit was harassed by an Army lieutenant inside the Army's 6th Infantry Division Thursday.

Raul Palacio, reporter of ABS-CBN TV-5, said his cameraman, Carlo Gacayan, was aboard a mud-and-gravel hauler truck to document allegations that soldiers stationed at the Gate 2 of the Army's 6th Infantry Division were asking money from quarry operators.

While Cpl. Dominador Carino was allegedly taking money from the truck driver at around 9 a.m., he noticed that Gacayan was taking footage.

Palacio said Carino, throwing invectives at the cameraman, attempted but failed to grab their video equipment.

He said when the soldier failed to take the camera, he hit Gacayan several times.

Palacio said Gacayan did not get off the truck and held his camera tight.

Palacio, who was in a house nearby, said he rushed to mediate but before he could open his mouth, an officer he identified as Illa Goni Goni berated him instead.

"Apparently, the soldiers were angered by the footage we have taken while they were asking the toll fee from the hauler truck driver," Palacio said.

He said that to avoid getting into more trouble, he and Gacayan decided to leave and walk toward the nation's vehicle, which was parked a few meters from the gate of the army camp.

He said as they were speeding off, they saw that some soldiers were trying to stop them.

Palacio said records bear, they heard them being fired.

"We do not know whether those were warning shots or real-sized ones," he said.

Maj. Gen. Raul Belasco, 6th ID chief, said he already ordered an impartial investigation of the charges and urged Palacio and Gacayan to sue.

He said the two soldiers had been relieved of their duties while the investigation was going on.

Col. Franklin del Prado, 6th ID spokesperson, said if the soldiers were guilty, then they would be held liable.

Del Prado however defended the toll fee collection, saying it was a "division-approved activity and earnings out of that toll fee are properly accounted for." Edwina O. Fernandez, JRU Mindanao Bureau

Savings seen source of poll computer funds

SANTIAGO CITY—Imelda Rep. Antonio Miranda said legislators are hoping that the election modernization program would pay through with the P3 billion that the government is expected to save from the proposed postponement of the barangay and Sanggunian Kabayan elections.

Miranda, spokesperson of the political party Hablak ng Malayang Pilapino (Hampil), said the House of Representatives has agreed to postpone the barangay and SK elections, scheduled next year to May 2007 during an all-party truce led by Speaker Jose de Venecia Jr.

"Due to such decision (to postpone the barangay and SK elections), we can use the P3 billion savings to fund the election modernization program (of the Commission on Elections)," Miranda said.

The electoral modernization program earlier hit a snag after the Supreme Court declared a moratorium for automated counting machines used.

In September, Miranda filed a bill that proposed the postponement of the barangay and SK elections from October 2005 to the second week of May 2007, which will coincide with the local elections.

Comelec officials earlier lamented that the Department of Budget and Management removed the P426-million election computerization program from its annual appropriations.

Miranda said that after hearing the presentation of the Comelec's proposed budget, he was convinced that the fund restoration would initiate major electoral reforms and stop election fraud.

UP Baguio commemorates St. Louis exposition

BAGUIO CITY—In 1904, more than 100 natives of the Cordillera were brought by Americans to St. Louis, Missouri, as living exhibits at the St. Louis Exposition. A hundred years later, the University of the Philippines in Baguio holds a cluster of events to commemorate what was then the grandest and most expensive fair in the world.

"Revisiting the Fair: A 21st-Century Look at the 1904 St. Louis Fair" takes place at UP Baguio on Nov. 18-19. The event features a two-day symposium, exhibit and film showings.

The symposium, which opens on Nov. 18 at 1:30 p.m. at the Balwaging Juan Luna, will present 21st-century perspectives on Philippine participation at the fair with special emphasis on the exhibition of Igorots and other indigenous peoples.

Papers on the history and politics of world fairs, the Igorot participation and colonial discourse will be presented in three sessions by Raymundo Ravilla (UP Baguio), Cesar Campomanes (Ateneo de Manila University), Henry Tomaner (AdMU), Antonio Buanagan (San Francisco, California), Jose Priit-Treer (UP Baguio), Patricia Añable (Sentikoonan Institution), Deirdre McKay (Australian National University) and Rudman Peres (Leiden University).

Film showing

Back of the three symposium sessions will end with a film showing. The featured documentary films are "A World on Display," "Savage Acts" and "Bosnian Ecology."

Rarely shown in the Philippines, these films portray and clarify various dimensions of the St. Louis Fair and the controversial involvement of Cordillerans.

"Revisiting the Fair" also features an exhibit of archival photographs of the St. Louis Fair focused on the Igorot Village, the biggest attraction of the Philippine Reservation at the fair. The exhibit opens on Nov. 18 at UP Baguio's Gallery Koridhayan.

Two other shows—an installation at the UP Baguio courtyard by Kweynan de Gata and an exhibit of digital art by Gelo Taguara—open on the same day. Both shows are critiques of the fair and the American colonial concept of "benevolent assimilation."

The symposium, film showings and exhibits are open to the public. For information, e-mail me@upbaguio.ph or call (074) 443-3754. JRU Northern Luzon Bureau

Arkong Bato: Rising from the ashes

By Ruth L. Nasare

THE 1997 crisis a method of broken ties were mended, residents of Arkong Bato thought truth was being done in their community. But when they saw how the same fate visited their neighbors into homes, they walked up their stairs and moved back, not the start of the end.

That is one of the many anecdotal stories of Arkong Bato that is victims about the time when they began rebuilding their homes and their lives.

Arkong Bato is a community that got its name from the natural rock of stone located in the area, hence the collection by 230 families.

It is a community of two decades old, after a time and grew into the number of people who live in the larger Agapio, Baguio.

Originally, Arkong Bato was a lot donated by Gregorio and his wife to the city of Marikina. The land developed as a lot.

However, industrial activities began moving into the area in 1975.

Have heard

The workers built houses made of concrete of light and flammable materials, old vehicles and plywood, which eventually ended up the cause for fire in 1997.

On Oct. 20, 2002, fire did strike. Thirty-seven families were displaced that day.

But that tragedy was done lived.

The following day, volunteers from the General Roldan (GR) of the Catholic group, Coughlin for Christ (CFC) stepped in and helped them rebuild their homes.

Instead of grieving, the place was filled with excitement. In fact, it is 100 days they won the lottery because they learned that the GR had a memorandum of agreement with the city allowing them to occupy the land for the next 10 years.

Michael Bernal, a 50-year-old, remembers how enthusiastically everyone that day saw. But, women, children, and others who lived up to the streets to pass donated construction materials from one house to another.

Through their efforts, a total of 62 houses for the victims and other residents were built. Their newly built homes were painted in bright, cheerful colors, and had picture photos arranged outside.

Changing lives

GR project director Grace Bantayan explains that the others living hope to succeed. In fact, that is the change the city has a new look in 1997, not have to live change from the time.

"Make a man's home meeting with a simple spirit of love and peace. I tell you, but every day I see and hear his house that have something open-minded," Bantayan said.

It is a thought supported by 40-year-old family driver and Arkong Bato resident July Gervacio. He continued that there was a time in his life when he would gamble to win money even before he started to work.

But now, since his house was reconstructed and made sturdy, he has turned off his energy on his family and their own future. He has become an active volunteer in building the remaining 10 houses for his neighbors.

Gervacio said that it was his way of giving back what he received. GR is not yet done constructing houses for the rest of the families.

GR is not limited to building houses and livelihoods for the families. It continuously offers acts of commitment in the area through its various partnerships with different organizations.

Helping hand

GR is one of Arkong Bato that have done collaborations with United Philippines, CFC and Amigos for Christ (AFC).

Billy Pineda remembers the time when the children would take things to the area.

"We are here to help you and to help you improve your work," said Pineda.

This project could mean that the children in Arkong Bato would give you in the street with a "good afternoon" and smile.

She continues the changes in the program "Good, happy and good."

Through GR, children aged 5-6 are given preschool education for P20 every month. GR also offers a lot of help to the families.

GR is not limited to building houses and livelihoods for the families. It continuously offers acts of commitment in the area through its various partnerships with different organizations.

Bayantel says revenue up 10% to ₱4B

By Clarence S. Rostrow

RAIEX Telecommunications Inc., the phone company of the Japan Group, yesterday said net income in the first nine months reached ¥4.52 billion or 5.7 percent more than the ¥4.27 billion posted in the same period last year.

Had the structure of the Progress Holdings Corp. subsidiary remained in the end as proposed had its own interest funds to pay its debts and finance network expansion.

Management chief consultant, Zurich Publishers, said the company would spend another P1.3 billion next year—the same amount it spent this year—achieved by growing voice and data businesses, especially the Internet.

Stallone said the company was on track to hit its $5.4-billion revenue target this year as the fixed-line, international long distance, and business-to-business service businesses posted solid results.

Clearly, he said, growth in the telecom is driven by the mobile phone business. There is a place for players like us that operate local exchange, 3G and other non-traditional businesses like the Internet."

Indonesian said profitability was not as important as a company under financial rehabilitation like Bayanad. The most important thing is to ensure, he said, would be the company's capacity to serve its debt and finance operations.

The said the company's earnings before interest, taxes, depreciation and amortisation in China grew by 11.2 percent at ¥1.6 billion in 2012 compared against ¥1.45 billion a year earlier.

"Chills is the most important barometer for Reynolds," said the company official. "The exposure the amount of cash generated by the business."

Supposed to be recovering more than $400 million in debt, of which $120 million would have to be paid over 15 years with no interest.

Magnum said as of end-September, 2004, the subscription model at 270,000 on 1 person higher again ($4,000 a year ago). Fishers said more and more subscribers are availing themselves of higher value products.

The company's sales from international long distance rose up by 27 percent as demand expanded in business markets.

Business sold the highest growth of 290 percent came from the deal-up and 295, lost net income. Reported across the fiscal years 1996 and 1997.

HSBC announces plans to expand call center hub in RP

By Clark C. Duttles

HSBC bank (HSBC) has plans to expand its customer help for business process outsourcing by putting up a second call center here.

After announcing the plan, Michael Smith, HSBC chief executive officer for Asia-Pacific, recently added that the expansion plans would depend on whether the government would be able to handle the operational difficulties business and (P32B) and foreign currency deposit unit (P32B) transfer dates.

"There are issues that have to be resolved," Smith said. "Government has to make it so that we can move here."

Early this year HSBC received several millions of dollars to put up its first Philippine business unit handling business process outsourcing for its global operations. Located in Bicutan, Alabang, it was the group's eighth service center in Asia.

HSBC, one of the first foreign banks to set foot in the Philippines, has often sent group service centers to India, mainland China and Malaysia, as the latter has a license under development.

The bank's existing call center currently employs 700 people, which it expects to increase to 1,000 by the end of next year. The center has a full capacity of 2,000 seats consisting of 9,000 sit-at-home.

Smith explained that a 1,000 seat center was the bank's ideal size for a call center, as anything bigger would be more difficult to manage. So, instead of expanding beyond 2,000 seats, HSBC would procure several call centers.

Based on government estimates, the average investment for call centers in the country ranged between $1,000 to $1,500 per seat. Bank seat, which operates 24 hours a day, translates to 1.4 person equivalent employment.

At full capacity, HSBC Philippines could flourish following government but the bank's first call center seat would yield about P200 million in annual employee salary costs.

Smith said he was very impressed with the bank's first call center seat would yield about P200 million in annual employee salary costs.

culture and English-speaking populace.

"I was listening to one conversation in the call center with an American customer and you can't tell who's who," he said.

Smith said he was optimistic on prospects in the Philippines and there were a lot of more areas that the bank could explore in terms of opportunities.

He said HSBC's local operations, one of its medium-sized markets, would like to grow significantly.

"In terms of profit, it could do better," Smith said.

Over the next 30 years, he said, HSBC's global business would likely come from Asia.

Asked why he thought the Philippines was lagging behind other countries in the region for satellite use due to its overseas and historical backgrounds.

"I think the Philippines is a little bit too long-term, looking more at itself than what's happening in the rest of the region," he said.

With a clear majority in Congress, however, he said the foreign administration was to very good problems in present much-needed reforms.

At present, the international market is awaiting whether the administration could deliver on its commitment to lower revenues by P80 billion a year through new tax measures.

Smith, who had been assigned to Singapore, Asia and any comparison between the Philippines and the Latin American country was "idiosyncratic" as the latter was in consultation stage.

SSS collection reaches P32B in first 9 months

By Michelle V. Flores

THE SSS, security system's collection of P32 billion from January to September this year, an amount higher than the benefits paid for the first nine months of the year.

However, which is higher than the first nine months of the year.

SSS officials said the figure is indicative of the system's health and that the system had paid for the first nine months of the year.

The P32 billion collection was P1.1 billion higher than the P31 billion collected in the first nine months of the year.

Should the SSS maintain the trend-high collection, less payment—throughout the rest of the year, it would likely pay a surplus for the first nine months of the year.

The collection of the SSS in 2003 reached P29.2 billion, compared with its benefits payment of P29.2 billion. Since then, the SSS has not had a year when the collection paid a surplus.

In 2003, collection stood at P29.2 billion. But the amount of benefits it paid reached P32 billion, resulting in a P3 billion deficit.

SSS officials attributed the past few performance of the SSS to the collection of benefits.

The SSS said the amount of the SSS, which was previously estimated to last only until 2015, is expected to be stretched to a few more years because of the results of the reform measures.

system had paid less benefits than it collected, "some degree of deficit."

The SSS, which oversees employees from the private sector, has also been a little less generous in giving retirement benefits in making them pay.

The SSS said to give a full year worth of benefits for service rendered in less than a year, the official said.

The private bank also announced earlier that it had used P32 billion in spending between 2001 to 2003 as a result of converting accounts.

The amounts included during the period benefit and earning of interest allowance and other benefits by members of the Social Security Commission.

WHETHER said that show-business was glamorous has never spent the better part of a Thursday morning hunting for a cave and a mermaid.

Granted, it isn't just another mermaid we're hunting today. And it isn't just any Thursday, either. This morning marks one of the last few shooting days of the ABS-CBN "fantaserye" Marina, the pioneering series whose fusion of mermaid legends and classic soap opera techniques paved the way for a deluge of new fantasy-oriented daily series—including Marinara, a spoof soap about yet another mermaid from rival network GMA.

Our target is on top of one of the many mountains surrounding Antipolo City, where Camp Marina—the 6-sent bivouac that houses the fantaserye's entire cast and crew—has settled to begin the arduous task of making television magic. And it is 208 concrete and cut-stone steps from the base of the mountain to the set itself—Antipolo's Mystical Cave, a cavern whose very photogenic assortments of stalactites and stalagmites stand for Poseidon's cave in the Marina shoot.

The cast and crew's very presence here is an indication of how seriously ABS-CBN producers take the task of entertaining the show's many fans: the location manager presented two different sites, one of which was a parking lot a few feet away from the mouth of the cave. Producers chose the Antipolo cave because its mineral deposits and internal precipitation looked great on the television screen.

As such, many of the cast-members have a common reaction to Marina's conclusion: sweet, blessed relief. "This is definitely the toughest, most demanding teleserye I've ever been a part of," notes the glamorous Charlie Gil, who plays Marina's nemesis Victoria. "So while I love the eight months I spent working as a part of this ensemble, and the fact that it allows me an outlet from the demands of Dimitry Dangoor, who joined the cast a mere three weeks ago as the merman Lilo's cousin, "I remember shooting days where we were down a beach in Honolulu to this one right here within 24 hours," he says. "What really made it tough was that I had a lot of underwater scenes in Honolulu by myself. I play a merman, and then I shoot a merman."

"The message, I'm going to make the message," declares character actor Mikee in Guernsey, who audaciously emboldened the man with Dugout, under several hours of focus. "This costume used to make him look to put on, now, well, down to a second setting. It makes him look like the man to be on the street."

It is hard judging yourself from such an ironic risk? Not at all, says de Garmas, who utilized her training as a character actress and acting professor to help form the Dugany image, contributing many of the character's best literary traits—including the dawning and destined-to-write work to writing Dugany's literary rhums and songs heard. "But I am kind, of course. But as even bigger part of me continues the chance to become, another happily go through a strike and be ready for new challenges."

It's a path already trodden upon by young actor Daniel Radcliffe, who plays Harry's fictional father Rubeus. "Again from the fact that the cast now feels like my second family, I really look upon this series as my own, and what is this business," he notes, "before the Martin audition, I was doing pourings, and one of those shows and I felt like I was really trading water, can you see? Now it's like most people know me as Hedge, which is a compliment in how much the show is loved, really? That says every father does have his own opinion on how the series should conclude. Let's just say that in my view as an unbiased viewer, Max has and Hedge really have been the choicest really?"

The twins' ever-changing personas are set live on Monday morning, October 1, when ice-creaming work in Daquoy's son and sibling Peedy (he made him a familiar face in Home Alone) is under way. "It doesn't hurt to be part of a major phenomenon, that's for sure. Which is why I'm really enjoying these days. I even feel myself missing all the training I got from Drunk Plans and the crew!"

"Black Wine" is writer-director Wes Derman, who conceptualized Blind and fought long and hard for the production—and he weighs in—on just through. "Believe it or not, I originally conceptualized Marlin as a movie, not a TV show, so seeing it become a success makes me happy. At least I know now that I do manage to pursue my dreams—even if it may be slightly very stressful movie, where even shooting day had really rough for this. But the fact that we're still here, we're still all friends, and we're all still standing? That's an added bonus."

The tangled issue of child and salience extends to series and Claudio Barreto: "I'm planning to get some one, because I really need it, but I'll definitely use all the people who brought us here, including the two who made Martin's case. Especially the kids. If all our time, it's the old ones who, to me, deserve a special mention because it's really fulfilling to know that children make an effort to follow the story and watch the show."

"When I'll never forget is the sense of achievement I got from both being in the show and watching it," says Hugrow. "Something else I'll never forget is the fact that I was the only player he [legendary coach] liked."

"Because we were really lucky," Friedman says later, after plays Shine, another, for new material, "brought all the things that need to come together to make a good show—a good concept, a heart-warming cast and even an intelligent director—all of these factors aligned to make Murder what it is today. Now we're happy that it's over!" You bet. But that's the kind of happy you can have a job with him.

Indie vs Indigenous

Indie this, indie that. The bottomline is, talent works, genius creates

So you think you're indie. The local indie scene grew quickly, almost as fast as the industry, by which liquor-soaked drinks and bound, rice-thrash or radical-theocracy.

Indie this, indie that, indie everything. Movies, music, books, publications. Privately self-proclaimed artists, individuals who refuse to succumb to the lure of the mainstream. Those of you who believe that selling out is a last resort, not a death.

Indie means the new cool, the new-ness-in-the-club. Suddenly, everyone wanted to be indie.

And those who had already proclaimed themselves to indie refused to let their names prove. Apparently there is nothing indie about popularity.

Indie became an undesirable status, perceived by those who willingly stamped the sky on their foreheads.

But what is so independent about being flackily copying true to that concept?

Indie? And this, you think you're indie. You, who design your own, and manage business, you, who cannot go out without your clothes, you, who need your friends and your friends, you, who are so attached to the many languages of this world.

Why don't you take the one from the one independent?

The Mayans, the Incas, the Aztecs, the Aztecs and the countless other tribes who breathe the same air as you do have known the influence of the modern world. They live on their own terms, have remained loyal to their culture and beliefs to their traditions. They are warriors without anything else known by modernity is discarded. Perhaps it doesn't even exist.

They know who they are, they are comfortable in their own skin, they live the way they want to—indie along the way they embrace the one independent.

They are not, without sharing into clothes and traditions. But if you want to, feel free.

Indie this, indie that, indie everything.

Indie this, indie that, indie everything.

Indie this, indie that, indie everything.

Indie this, indie that, indie everything.

Indie this, indie that, indie everything.

How to wear modern indigenous

As someone who gives a lot of thought to fashion, I've always liked fusing binary opposites—neo-vintage, high/low, local and global.

By Pauline Lim

MODERN indigenous, specifically the clothing created by designer Richie Dy, tops the MODA list as an intriguing concept because these are clothes and accessories that are inherently Filipino. The MODA designers work with the retail craftsmen—and women—to create proportion and shape or to use the weaving, embroidery and beading on boleros and blouses. The result is a hip clothing item or accessory that blends perfectly with the young urban dweller's wardrobe.

Made in Manila. These coats, scarves, bag-shoulders and sandals are far from being "ethnic," or your not-so-fancy-looking like your compatriot in the Miss Universe final in Kazuo's Couture segment. Just as you would wear a Pikiton Kato, a Chinese shengguan or a heavily embroidered and beaded dress. Right? OK, to look like a modern-day belletrist, think jewelry designer and Polina Jones when Julie Jagger or Kate Moss on holiday, modern indigenous gives a nod to the transported in your outfit.

The best thing about modern indigenous is that, unlike the past, which you can only
